THE WHEEL

.BIRD.

ON THE CIRCUIT.

"IT'S a curious thing," said the man who prided himself on being an observer of human nature, "that as soon as a young fellow learns to ride, and finds that there are other fellows who cannot ride so fast as he, that straightway he must get the racing bug in h head, and want to go on the circu There are plenty of young chaps, mod as you like as regards all their oth accomplishments, but let one of the fancy he can ride races, and nothing w do till he joins a team, and rides agai Sanger."

"That's nothing strange at all," s
